JOE BOB DETECTS LIFE IN SAN FRANCISCO

September 19, 1985

Joe Bob Briggs hit San Francisco for his first Wimp Coast appearance at Wolfgang's Comedy Club, looked around for a few hours, talked to some media types in sushi bars, and went back to his motel to watch cable TV and sleep.

The next night at Wolfgang's, he rose above his surroundings. 800 paying customers at two shows, first one SRO. Opening with "When Orkin Comes To Spray," the crowd stomped and roared with Joe Bob through tales of his boyhood in Krankaway County, Texas (his daddy was a dirt-miner), his conversion to feminism (he no longer needs a block and tackle to raise his conscience more than once a night), his search for a fifth ex-wife, with female members of the audience gleefully exposing their breasts on command, and three other great musical numbers.

Will Jarrett, the Dallas Times Herald editor who fired Joe Bob's ass in Dallas, was in the audience at the second show. Joe Bob sang a special song for him, "Thank You, Jesus," in which he pleads that the Big Guy "Stick some hairy fungus in his ear-- or maybe we could get him on a technicality, and make his dangling privates disappear...."

"We Are The Weird," his closing number, featured the Drive-In Invitation, a first chance for Bay Area fans to dedicate their culture-infected lives to the sanctuary of the drive-in.

a token of Joe Bob's appreciation from his agent, prior to the performance.

Entertainment Tonight and PM Magazine took up a lot of Joe Bob's time in San Francisco. He answered a lot of pertinent questions and made fun of the Wimp Coast hostesses, so big spectaculars will be broadcast into your face soon.

it's turned upside down. Preciate the heck out of it, Dan!

"AN EVENING WITH JOE BOB"
Concert Dates

7/27/85: High School Auditorium, Berea, Ohio: They rolled in the aisles, and some of em even laughed.

9/17/85: New Arts Theater, Dallas, Texas: For 200 of Joe Bob's closest personal friends, so he could use em as guinea pigs. One gynecologist heckler.

9/19/85: Wolfgang's, San Francisco: Two sold-out shows. World premiere of "The Ballad of the Death Row Vegetarian." Nuked by a crew from "Entertainment Tonight." Attacked by a set of artificial boobs. Attacked by the critics for singing like a bullfrog with a hernia. Everybody sang "We Are the Weird."

10/29-10/30/85 (two nights): A Good Humor Bar, College Station, Texas: The club where all the Aggies of Texas A&M University go to tell sex-with-farm-animal jokes. Joe Bob will also lecture to journalism students on the difference between us and Communist Russia.

11/8/85: Hogg Auditorium, University of Texas, Austin: Joe Bob got banned from the campus, but millions of students protested and so the High Sheriff Committee voted 5-4 to let him back in. Protesters expected. Possible world premiere of "You Said You Were a Virgin But Your Baby Ain't Named Jesus." Kicks off a weekend Drive-In Movie Festival.

11/85: Hickory, North Carolina, the used furniture capital of the world: Details pending, so the evening won't conflict with the Springsteen tour and hurt Bruce's business. Sponsored by the Focus newspaper, sickest publication in western North Carolina (the hillbilly part).

11/85: "Mountain Stage" hillbilly music show, Charleston, West Virginia: Joe Bob has been trying to get on this show for years.

12/85: First Unitarian Church, Richardson, Texas: Joe Bob delivers his annual Christmas Sermon and performs "Jingle-Bob Jesus."
